What do the new SASE apprenticeship frameworks look like?

1. Competency

Occupational qualifications (typically NVQs) that provide learners with an opportunity to be assessed in the workplace, over a period of time, in both practical and theoretical aspects of a specific area of employment.

2. Knowledge

Knowledge and understanding (technical) qualifications that underpin and support the achievement of the competency qualification and provide additional knowledge required to facilitate progression to higher education or higher levels of working.

3. Combined

In some frameworks a decision has been made by the industry to combine the competency and knowledge aspects of the framework into one qualification. This is not an option, but determined by the framework concerned (eg 1st4sport Level 2 NVQ Certificate in Spectator Safety).

4. Employee rights and responsibilities

Apprentices must complete a mandatory industry and organisational awareness qualification, covering all nine of the national outcomes of the employee rights and responsibilities under employment law.

5. Functional Skills

Available as an alternative to Key Skills as a mandatory component, Functional Skills qualifications in both English and maths are commonly needed for success in a range of activities in education and training, work and life.

6. Additional employer requirements

While the achievement of additional employer requirements is not a mandatory requirement for some apprenticeships, the sector and employers recognise the value and the need for these, and completion of them will make the apprentice more employable. The qualifications selected have to be relevant to the organisation, linked to the competence element and relevant to the apprentice's role.
